

ABOUT SECUREPOINT

In 1997, a young, independent IT system house won a major contract. When difficulties arose with the firewall, its manufacturer refused to cooperate. The only solution for the system house was to develop its own security solutions. This marked the birth of Securepoint.

This story led to the development of Securepoint's current brand essence: uncompromising product quality and comprehensive, free support for local IT professionals. Securepoint takes responsibility for its products, its partners, and the people behind the security measures.

A passion for finding the best solution and reliability as the basis for trusting relationships have enabled Securepoint to grow and have been reflected in various product awards.
